

BILL MEANS NEW ERA FOR ALASKA

E. H. GARDNER, JUST RETURNED, SAYS RAILROAD WILL ALLOW THE WORKINGS OF HUNDREDS OF CLAIMS OF LOW GRADE ORE.

The Alaska railroad bill will mean great things for Alaska and the Northwest, according to E. H. Gardner, who arrived here Saturday night on his way to Fort Klamath, where he will visit his father, H. H. Gardner. Mr. Gardner has been in the far North for some years and is familiar with conditions there existing. He is connected with the Seattle-Alaska mining concerns and spends most of his time in Alaska.

"The people of Alaska are still celebrating the introduction of the Alaska railroad bill," said he this morning, "and they have good reasons for celebrating, for a railroad into Alaska will mean the handling of millions in low grade ore that at present cannot be handled at a profit."

"Personally, I know of several properties that run from $9 to $15 a ton that are idle now on account of the present cost of getting ore to the smelters. With the building of the railroad these properties can operate at a very nice profit. And there are hundreds of other properties where the conditions are just the same."

Summons

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for Klamath County.

Emma R. Grigsby, Plaintiff,

vs.

Frank Irish, Defendant.

To Frank Irish, the above named defendant:

In the name of the state of Oregon, you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit on or before Saturday, the 7th day of March, 1914, that being the last day of the time prescribed in the order for publication of this summons, and if you fail so to appear and answer, for want thereof the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint, to wit: For a judgment against the said defendant, Frank Irish, for the sum of $100, together with interest thereon at the rate of 10 per cent per annum from January 3, 1912, and for the further sum of $57.08 paid out for taxes on said premises, with interest thereon at the rate of 10 per cent per annum from December 13, 1913, and for the further sum of $100 at attorney's fees for instituting this suit, and for the costs and disbursements herein; that the said sum of $57.08, with interest thereon at the rate of 10 per cent per annum from December 13, 1913, be declared to be an additional lien on said premises in favor of plaintiff and against defendant; that the usual decree be made for the sale of the lands and premises described in plaintiff's mortgage; that is to say: West half of north west quarter of section thirty-five, and the east half of the southeast quarter of section nineteen, and the east half of the northeast quarter of section thirty, all in township thirty-eight south, range ten east of Willamette meridian, in Oregon.

That the said sale be made by the sheriff of Klamath county, Oregon, in manner provided by law. That the proceeds of said sale be applied in the payment of said judgment, interest, costs and attorney's fees and all accruing costs. That plaintiff have execution against the defendant for any balance that may remain due the plaintiff after applying all the proceeds of said sale as above provided. That the defendant and all persons claiming under him subsequent to the execution of plaintiff's said mortgage upon said lands and premises, either as purchasers, incumbrancers or otherwise may be barred and foreclosed of all right, claim or equity of redemption in and to said lands and premises and every part thereof. That plaintiff have such other and further relief as to the court may seem just and equitable.

This summons is served by publication thereof in the Evening Herald, a

A Kingdom for a Cotton Frock

When fond papa is told that the new frock or the new suit for the balmy spring days is to be merely a trifle of a cotton affair, he need not flatter himself that daughter is becoming economical. She is really quite abreast of the mode, for King Cotton is coming to his own again this season in suitings that outdo silk and wool in beauty and effectiveness, and alas! in price. Here in the delicate shade of the stately forglove is a cotton cote de cheval, that even an expert, to say nothing of fond papa, could hardly distinguish from stuffs that were wont to be more costly than cotton.

Moreover, there is another item to be debited to the expense account, and that is yardage. Even though coats are now short and skirts are narrow, the broadness and the looseness of the former and the puffed-up-ness and puffed-out-ness of the latter use up just as much high-priced material as did the precise old long coat and wide skirt. Alas, poor father!

A prize of $1,000 has been waiting in Philadelphia since 1859 for the first resident of North America who shall determine by experiment whether or not infrared rays are transmitted with the same speed as other light rays.

Mrs. Adella Wilson of Luzerne, N. Y., was married recently to Charles A. Wilson. Although this is her fourth wedding she has not yet changed her name, having married successively four brothers, whose name was the same as her own.

Oh, Mr. Luther Burbank, you Aren't in it. Madame Mode can do A stunt to which yours aren't one two. For she can turn a luscious peach Into an orange. All and each And every female within reach Will orange be when 'kins the spring; And no peach will to lemon cling. For orange shade's the latest thing.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Yes, indeed, the first fruits of fashion are oranges. Orange hued hair is all the rage and even the newest complexions are verging on the orange skin. Counters flaunting the new spring fabrics in the faces of fashion's followers fairly rock with the billious silk bulk and jaundiced lengths of orange hued eponge, ratine, voile, marquisette and crepe. Many are solid one-toned effects, while others are broken up into orange and white checks and stripes in a truly eggy manner. Some of the exquisite sheer voiles and crepes even go farther on their fruity way and show strands of oranges in the natural tints hand stenciled on their filmy surfaces.

There is little doubt that femininity will take kindly to this orange fad, for every woman knows that orange trees bear both fruit and flower simultaneously. It is not a wild hope to cherish therefore that orange blossoms may be the legitimate fruits of a fetching orange costume. Besides, Neil Gwynn was an orange girl and she won a king. As a timely fashion tip, however, you would do well not to adopt the orange color scheme too profusely until after the 17th of March.

Next to looking like an orange, the best fashion bet of early spring is to disguise yourself like an awning. Widely striped ratines, voiles and organdies in all the combinations of red, blue, green, yellow or brown stripes, with white, are startlingly stunning and a boon to portly figures.

The passion for pink panties, petticoats and other personal pretties seems to know no limit, and all of my Lady Dainty's spring underwear glows and blushes with the faintest rosy tint of dawn. Recklessly combined with the frank openwork of allover net no wonder the nighties, combinations, chemises and knickers blush. Some of the very latest lingerie is entirely allover net with just a few pink ribbons and rosebuds added for warmth.

What the net results will be you dare not think, but with these in lieu of the woolen underwear that grandma used to affect it is at least cheering to reflect that spring is near.

Detachable tunics are things of beauty and joys forever as well as veritable life savers to the damsel whose wardrobe purse is slender and whose wardrobe needs are large.

A tunic chiffon edged in fur or wired with rosebuds will transform your lone evening gown completely. Worn with the tunic tonight and without it tomorrow, you get the credit for a versatility of frocks. A tunic of Roman stripes or Scotch plaid silk in blending tones adds a piquant and refreshing change to your tailored suit, and converts it into a drowsy afternoon costume, and there you are.

A tunic in time saves nine or so frocks to your season's credit.

Dame Fashion doesn't disdain to get hints from the getup of a dresser or a cowboy. They all look alike to her when she is stalking a style. Snatching the bandana from the neck of the cowpuncher and the peon, she proceeds to swath it around the lily throat of a "society" queen.

In plain words, the last words in collar effects is a piece of material cut to simulate a knotted handkerchief and draped carelessly and loosely about your neck.

A dream of a summer hat with a muff to match is shown in the window of one of the smartest hat shops on Fifth avenue. The chapeau which is a large garden hat of leghorn has the brim completely veiled in turquoise chiffon over corn color taffeta the exact shade of the leghorn straw. A spray of the roses decorates the middle.

World's Champion at the Star

Belle Gordon, world's champion lady bag puncher, opened a four-night engagement at the Star Theatre last night and furnished a delightful half hour's entertainment to a packed house. Miss Gordon won the diamond championship belt in New York City July 27, 1897, competing with men as well as women, though she refuses to claim the full championship, for, in that event, she would have to meet an undesirable class of men in defending her title.

In the championship contest all the contestants were numbered, Miss Gordon's number being "13", but, being a plucky little Kentuckian, she did not let the hoodoo number make her nervous.

"Please say that I'm delightfully surprised with Klamath Falls and very grateful to Mr. Houston. He had a taxi for me and an express wagon for my outfit at the depot last night and rushed me up in time to go on with my act.

"And the Star orchestra is just splendid. We had no time for rehearsal, yet they just picked up my music and carried me along as nicely as you please."

Miss Gordon opens at the Empress Theatre in San Francisco Feb. 8.

Grace Episcopal Guild will meet at the home of Mrs. C. O. Morgan, 29 Pine street, Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 4, 1914, at 2:30 p. m. All members are earnestly requested to attend, as business of importance is to be transacted.
